Raunaq, the tiger cub, has an instinctive awareness of the jungle and a tiger's power. But without his mother's training, he cannot fend for himself. He knows that he must get someone to help him. Or be lost forever.

Taking comfort in her faith in her family and her vast knowledge of the forest, Junglee, the Pardhi girl, decides to take care of Raunaq as they face the challenges of the world together.

Told as two sides of the same story, Junglee's in words and Raunaq's in pictures, this beautiful tale inspires peace and understanding by overcoming fear and mistrust with love.

MEGHAA GUPTA works in children's publishing and firmly believes that all change begins with getting children to read books that demystify the world and its infinite possibilities. Meghaa has contributed to the history book On this Day (Dorling Kindersley, 2021) and is the author of the widely acclaimed Unearthed: An Environmental History of Independent India (Puffin, 2020).

Uncoded: A Technological History of Independent India

MEGHAA GUPTA

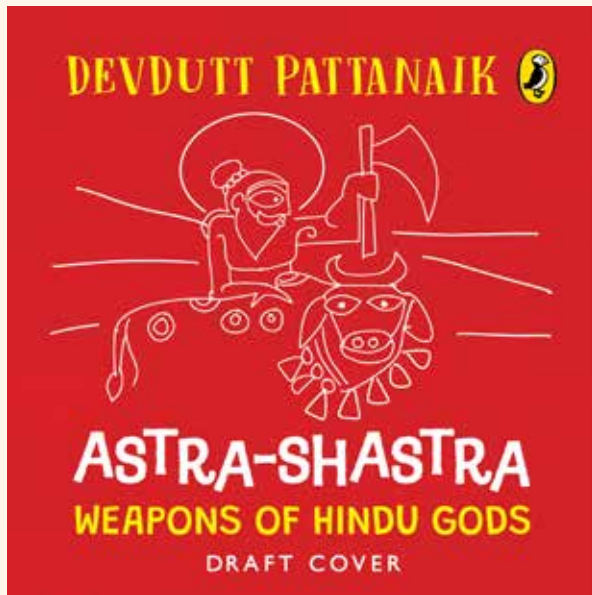

The story of India's rise in the field of science and technology in the decades since Independence.

In the years since Independence, modern technology has swept through all corners of Indian life. But back in 1947, this seemed impossible. Newly independent India was one of the poorest countries in the world, with extremely low levels of literacy. Yet, with dreams in their eyes and an unshakeable resolve, a small team of far-sighted policymakers, scientists and technologists set out to make the impossible possible.

Uncoded: A Technological History of Independent India is a story of one of the greatest technological transformations in the modern world. Blending a lucid narrative with illustrations, infographics, trivia, personal anecdotes, quotes and an informative timeline, the book invites readers to explore how a nation used science and technology to rebuild itself and reimagine its destiny against all odds.
