A fun and new fusion cookbook!

Rohini Rana's third foray into the world of gastronomy takes the reader through her encounters with Indian cuisine back in her childhood and, later, recipes from the Rana heritage when she was a young bride in Nepal. In this book, she has tried to combine recipes from India and Nepal with the taste and flavours of cuisines encountered during her travels accompanying her husband on global postings.

ROHINI RANA was born in India and married Gen. Gaurav S.J.B. Rana (former chief of army staff, Nepal Army) in 1977. During her life as an army wife, she has played the part of a homemaker, social worker, entrepreneur, restaurateur and author. Cooking is her passion, and following that road, she has authored two books: The Rana Cookbook: Recipes from the Palaces of Nepal and The Nepal Cookbook: 108 Regional Recipes.

A manifesto for the modern Indian woman!

Women are taught early that 'fine' is the only acceptable answer. Fine at work. Fine at home. Fine in relationships. Fine in bodies that are always being watched and measured. The Girls Are Not Fine is about what's underneath all that fineness. The invisible labour, the emotional math, the unassuming ways women shrink themselves to fit rooms that were never built for them.

This isn't a self-help book. It's a vocabulary. A transfer of language for the things women carry but rarely get to name: the performance of competence, the economics of being 'low-maintenance' and the exhaustion of being the family's emotional infrastructure while also trying to build a career, a life, and a self. Part confession, part cultural critique and part practical toolkit, it moves through work, money, family, body, friendship and love, not to fix anything, but to finally call it what it is.

Because when you can name what's happening, you can stop wondering if you're crazy. And that's where everything else starts.

HARNIDH KAUR's first book of poetry, The Inability of Words, arrived when she was twenty and was the beginning of a practice that has never really stopped. In the years since, she has served as head of fund at W1 Fund, India's first non-dilutive grant programme for young founders; built products at Swiggy; and spent a decade writing about what women actually navigate when they try to build something of their own. A Schwarzman Scholar, she has spoken at Harvard Business School, the University of Michigan and the One Billion Summit. Her newsletter, HK's Newsletter, finds its way to readers across the world. The Girls Are Not Fine is her first work of non-fiction.

A travel memoir like no other!

What happens when you leave behind the familiar and follow your curiosity to far corners of the world?

In Rootless and Restless, Shivya Nath trades comfort for adventure and sets off on a deeply personal journey to some of our planet's most remote places. From a tiny island deep in the Arctic to off-grid indigenous communities in Myanmar and the stark mountain deserts of Uzbekistan, she travels in search of stories, traditions and ways of life that are rarely written about.

Along the way, Shivya finds herself tangled in a morality police raid in Iran, discovering centuries-old traditions in Japan and coming face-to-face with the last living member of an entire species in the Pacific Ocean. In a world shaped by social media, cultural divides and climate change, Rootless and Restless is a reminder that travel can be more than ticking destinations off a list.

SHIVYA NATH grew up in the Indian Himalayas and quit her corporate job at twenty-three with a dream of travelling the world. She pursued a nomadic life for nearly seven years, living out of two bags and spending time with local and indigenous communities. Her work focuses on the intersection of meaningful travel, climate action and social impact. She is also the author of The Shooting Star: A Girl, Her Backpack and the World.

The extraordinary journey of Gurudev Sri Sri Ravi Shankar, as narrated by his sister, Bhanumathi Narasimhan who saw it all unfold

It was an era when the wisdom of yoga had been buried under years of ritual practices, when religion outweighed human values, when games were becoming wars and wars were being played like games. It was at such a time that, in a quaint village in south India, a young boy was found in deep meditation. He would say, 'I have family everywhere. People are waiting for me.' Nobody believed him then.

Time revealed the destiny of the millions who came to him to discover themselves. Over the years, his sublime presence and pragmatic teachings would foster the values of joy, peace and love across the world. His transformative art of breathing, the Sudarshan Kriya, became a household practice, an alternative way of life that inspired people to seek self-realization. He became the guru who made the ethereal tangible, who brought about a profound shift in every sphere of human endeavour—from art to architecture, health care to rehabilitation, inner peace to outer dynamism.

This book is an intimate and affectionate account of the life of Gurudev Sri Sri Ravi Shankar by his sister BHANUMATHI NARASIMHAN, who witnessed his mystical life unfold up close. Gurudev: On the Plateau of the Peak is an attempt to fit the ocean in a teacup, offering readers a sip of infinity.

A riveting journey through sixteenth-century mausoleums, forts, Sufi shrines and Persian chronicles to reveal the little-known story of an accomplished warrior queen

In 1595, the Muslim warrior queen Chand Bibi of the Deccan sultanates defeated the most powerful forces of her time: Mughal imperial armies. Who was this queen? And what kind of world made her possible? In this, the first book about Chand Bibi, the author focuses on the inadequately studied subject of Muslim female power in premodern India. But Chand Bibi is not just another book about a Muslim woman of medieval India. It is also the author's personal journey as a historian and the process of doing research about the past.

SARAH WAHEED is assistant professor of history at University of South Carolina. She holds a PhD from Tufts University and an MA from University of Chicago. She is the recipient of several awards and fellowships, including the Fulbright-Nehru Academic and Professional Excellence Award and the prestigious Stanford University Humanities Center Fellowship.

What's in a name? Alka Saraogi's pathbreaking Hindi novel tackles questions of identity, nostalgia and the Partition of Bengal

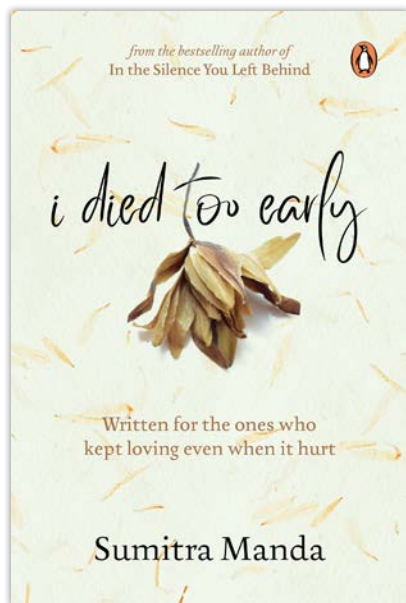

In Calcutta, our tragically bumbling hero, variously known as Chacha, Kulbhushan and Gopal Chandra Das, wanders a maze of memories, searching for himself. Like many East Bengalis scarred by the trauma of separation from their homeland, he dove into forgetfulness to survive the suffocating, alien streets of Calcutta and the belittlements of his Marwari relatives.

Delivered into his parents' lap by an itinerant fakir and blessed with admirable resourcefulness, Shyama Dhobi rises through the ranks, transforming from washerman to rickshaw-puller to trusted confidante of cotton mill-owning Bengali aristocrats—all amid the mounting communal violence and brutality of the West Pakistani army that sets the stage for the Bangladesh Liberation War. Humorous, sincere and philosophical, Register Me As Kulbhushan is a modern epic of exile.

ALKA SARAOGI is a Hindi author from Calcutta belonging to the Marwari diaspora. Her first novel, Kalikatha Via Bypass, won the Sahitya Akademi award in 2001. She is the youngest Hindi writer ever to win the award. She is also the recipient of the K.K. Birla Foundation Award, Indu Sharma Katha International Award, Kalinga Litfest Award, Valley of Words Award, Stree Shakti Award and Fakir Mohan Senapati Award. She was knighted 'Cavaliere' by the government of Italy.

JOHN VATER is an American writer and literary translator. He is co-translator of The Play of Dolls: Stories by Hindi author Kunwar Nanain, and co-author of More Than the Eye Can See: Memoirs of Gopinath Pillai, which explores the Malayalee diaspora in Singapore.

Vater's translations and essays have appeared in Ploughshares, Words Without Borders, Two Lines Journal, The Asian Literary Review, The Bombay Review, Indian Literature Today and Carnegie India.

A riveting graphic novel inspired by Tagore's iconic heroines, based on an internationally acclaimed dram-com musical

When the spirited and sassy ghost of Kadambari Devi—Rabindranath Tagore's enigmatic sister-in-law—leaps across time, she finds herself guiding two iconic women from Tagore's fiction, Charu and Bimala. Brilliant, restless and caught between love, intellect and duty, they struggle to find their place in a world that is changing faster than they are allowed to.

ISHEETA GANGULY is a Tagore fusion singer with nine acclaimed albums to her credit. She is also a playwright-director. Her musical theatre productions, Three Women, Sundays with Chitra & Chaitali, and Shakuntala Awaits, have garnered international recognition.

CHIRANTAN DEB SARKAR is an accomplished painter, graphic designer and storyteller who uses visual art as a medium to interpret nature and environmental consciousness.

A glittering wedding turns into a dark comedy. Aboard the Maharaja Express, come, bear witness to a wedding, chaos, drama and murder

Welcome to the grand wedding of Vir Malhotra and Vani Mehra, on the Maharaja Express! Vir and Vani are childhood friends whose life takes an abrupt start when Vir's family approaches Vani's for an arranged marriage. With the wedding on board, Vir is determined to win the love of his childhood crush, while Vani is torn between Vir and her lost love, Kunal. As tensions simmer between the Malhotra and Mehra clans, the dreamy destination wedding becomes a runaway train for family drama. It is the stage for forfeits, blackmails, ego, dowry debates and endless miscommunication. Vir and Vani, caught amid this chaos, try to navigate their relationship when the unthinkable happens—a murder. The glittering wedding train becomes a crime scene. As the police set out to untangle the web of dark secrets and lies, every guest must confront the question: Who among them could be the murderer?

PRAKHAR VISHWANI is a writer and director who likes telling stories but hates calling himself a storyteller. Born in Agra to a family of doctors, he once found himself in Kota preparing for medical school, but quickly realized he was far more interested in dissecting characters than cadavers. This detour led him to a film school in Mumbai, the city he now calls home. Over the past several years, Prakhhar has directed ads, films, and non-fiction shows for brands and platforms across India. Wedding on the Maharaja Express is his debut novel and, statistically speaking, his best so far.

From British-Bangladeshi writer Tahmima Anam comes a searing novel about women's lives in contemporary Bangladesh

On a desolate, sinking island, a group of children witness their mothers living lives of cruelty and servitude. Bought and sold by Amma, the sadistic madam who was once sold into slavery herself, the women have learned to accept their fate. Yet their children weave fantastic tales of escape, imagining that someday, they will leave the island and enjoy a life of freedom.

When Kusum Khan, a young, educated woman from the city, is forcibly brought to the island, she too is subjected to Amma's violent induction. Yet Kusum refuses to yield, and soon, the collective complacency of her fellow prisoners turns into a ferocity and defiance. Together, they begin a rebellion that will upend their island, their world and the very order of things.

An earth-shattering drama of resistance and female power, Uprising gives voice to the silenced through the story of a revolution no one saw coming.

TAHMIMA ANAM is the author of the Bengal trilogy. She is a recipient of the Commonwealth Writers' Prize for Best First Book and the O. Henry Award. Her short story, 'Garments' was shortlisted for the BBC National Short Story Award. She was selected as one of Granta's Best of Young British Novelist in 2013 and is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature. Born in Dhaka, Bangladesh, she trained as an anthropologist at Harvard University and now lives in London.

What if love is a tragedy waiting to happen?

The decision to 'stay together, forever' is sometimes not enough.

Love in the age of Instagram comes with receipts.

Insecurities don't disappear just because you say, 'I trust you.' Enter the red flags—jealousy, toxic patterns and online drama.

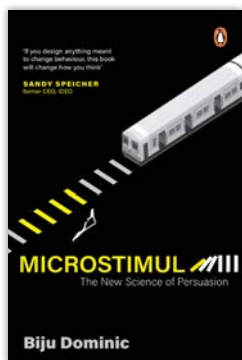

This book is a raw, unfiltered story about modern love—the kind that's messy, real and impossible to forget.

KAJOL AIKAT is an author, literary content creator and book influencer.

An illuminating book on deciphering human behaviour

What could possibly connect the grim statistic of ten daily deaths on Mumbai's railway tracks with a 30-second ad encouraging us to reach for a salad instead of fries, and to the research of Richard Thaler, the Nobel Prize-winning pioneer of behavioural economics? This forms the beating heart of MicroStimuli, which offers a revolutionary perspective on behavioural change. This book brings together research across disciplines to present a unified concept of MicroStimuli, with robust case studies. It demonstrates how MicroStimuli, as small, precise behavioural triggers, can help drive meaningful change in areas where conventional approaches have fallen short.

BIJU DOMINIC is chief evangelist at Fractal Analytics and was chairman at Final Mile Consulting from 2008 to 2020. He holds a B.Tech in mechanical engineering from the College of Engineering, Trivandrum, and a PDDM from XIM Bhubaneswar. Dominic has worked at the crossroads of neuroscience, behavioural economics and design.

A practical playbook to design your life strategy and thrive in an uncertain world

In business, it is well-accepted that a good strategy makes the difference between a winning company and a bankrupt one. The same is true in war and sports. What about individuals? In times of disruptive change, like the one we are living through now, a good strategy is vital for each of us. Success depends on our ability to assess the environment, envision our future, articulate a vision, prioritize our actions, set a plan and forge ahead enabled by support systems—all facets of a good strategy.

Strategy for Life is a step-by-step guide to design personal strategy. It considers all aspects of an individual's life within the current context of change, uncertainty and opportunity, and gives them concrete tools to thrive in times of opportunity while remaining resilient through difficult phases. It is a handbook for personal and professional success.

Divided into seven steps over three parts, it is well-suited for professionals, creatives, entrepreneurs and leaders who want to take charge of their own life. In this book, an experienced strategist with decades of experience working with organizations and individuals distils the best frameworks in an easy-to-understand, quick-to-apply methodology to help you craft a winning strategy for your life.

SURYA RAMKUMAR is a business leader with more than twenty years' experience working with global companies across sectors and geographies. She was a partner at McKinsey & Company and the leader of a successful multibillion dollar business group at Microsoft. She is an entrepreneur and board member to tech start-ups and non-profit organizations.

Hard-won lessons from the frontlines of entrepreneurship

Every great company begins not with a plan, but with a fire.

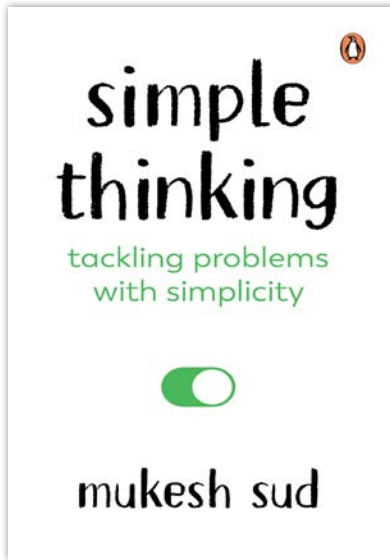

The real challenge isn't starting, it's keeping that fire alive while everything around you tries to put it out. Competitors. Doubt. Scale. Sometimes, even your own success.

Made in Fire is the story of how the team behind one of India's most successful travel platforms did exactly that; building not just a company, but an ecosystem of technology ventures along the way. Part origin story, part builder's playbook, the book captures the lessons that only emerge in the trenches of real entrepreneurship: how culture becomes a company's invisible engine, how teams of believers outperform lone heroes, and how founders must constantly reinvent their companies before the world forces them to.

This isn't theory dressed up as experience. It's what building actually looks like—the bets, the near misses, the decisions that change everything.

For founders, builders and future entrepreneurs, Made in Fire is a candid look at how enduring companies are truly forged.

RAJNISH KUMAR is the co-founder and group co-CEO of ixigo, India's leading AI-based travel platform. An alumnus of IIT Kanpur, Rajnish began his career as a software development engineer at Amadeus before returning to India to build ixigo. He has played a pivotal role in shaping its vision across new product development, technological innovation, growth marketing, AI initiatives and building global talent.

From the bestselling co-author of Leapfrog and LeanSpark

We are obsessed with complexity and search for intricate solutions to challenging problems. It needn't be.

Using stories and anecdotes, Simple Thinking will show you how to cut through the clutter and tackle challenges with common sense. First, divide the problem into smaller, more manageable parts. Then, using a paradoxical mindset, welcome contradiction and opposing points of view. Finally, look around for simple clues others haven't noticed.

A former faculty at IIM Ahmedabad (IIMA), MUKESH SUD was previously an entrepreneur. Currently, a visiting fellow at Cambridge University's Judge Business School, he continues to teach at IIMA and Ashoka University. His co-authored book Leapfrog: Six Practices to Thrive at Work is a national bestseller and has been translated into many languages.
